Newspapers, TV stations, and other media have to make money. As I've remarked before, the editors who decide what news reaches us have to gauge what interests us. Chemistry isn't popular. The New York Times strives to be comprehensive and unbiased in the rest of its news coverage. It will cover topics that are important but unlikely to be popular.

A paper on the new process was published in the journal Science Advances on 16 December. Coatings are everywhere, from the paint on your house to a protective layer on the screen of your smartphone.

Green chemistry creates coatings from nature

The biological process by which plants transform light into food is chemistry. The combustion that leads to global warming is chemistry. The experiments performed to analyze crime scene evidence are chemistry. Because chemistry is central to so many science and non-science fields, a degree in chemistry opens the door to a variety of professions.
